MRS. L. C. MOREHOUSE DIES AT SAN LEANDRO

Well-Known Lady Answers the Final Summons After a Long Illness.

Mrs. Miriam Jewett Morehouse, wife of L. C. Morehouse, for sixteen years a member of the State Board of Equalization, passed away at her home in San Leandro at 9 o'clock Sunday night after a lingering and painful illness of many months.

She was conscious almost to the last, and accepted her lot with gentle resignation. Her only regret being parted from her husband with whom she had lived in rare felicity for forty-six years.

Mrs. Morehouse was a woman of most admirable character—a gentle, kindly lady who filled the atmosphere of her home with hospitable refinement and domestic sweetness. She was devoted to her husband, from whom she was never separated for more than a few days at a time and in return was idolized by Mr. Morehouse, who had the highest regard for her sound judgment and sterling sense.

He was wont to say that he never did anything without consulting his wife, and no important step was taken unless she advised it.

For forty years Mrs. Morehouse had resided in San Leandro and was loved by all who knew her. Her sweetness of disposition, her warm sympathy for distress and her ready charity endeared her to old and young. Her home life was ideal. Domestic peace and gracious womanliness radiated from her. Even in their declining years she and her husband were like lovers going through life hand in hand, united in spirit and harmonious in tastes.

Mrs. Morehouse was rarely fond of books, read widely and intelligently and was remarkably well-informed on general matters though she never pursued her knowledge. She always had a viewpoint of her own, feminine but practical and broadly tinged with the matronly instinct.

She was born in Antioch, Illinois, sixty-six years ago of excellent New England ancestry from whom she inherited her literary tastes and strong character. She was well educated for the day and place in which she gained her schooling and for a time taught school. She was married to Lewis C. Morehouse in June 1861 and made him a model wife. She is survived by her husband and a brother, A. I. Jewett of White Sound, Washington. The funeral will take place from the family residence, San Leandro at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Morehouse is almost heart-broken over his irreparable loss, though he has known for months that the end was drawing near. He has the sympathy of a wide circle of friends.

WOMAN BRUTALLY MURDERED

Son Is in City Prison Accused of Crime

MARTHA E. SODERBERG

ERLEND SODERBERG

Body Is Found in Locked Closet.

That a black cat owned by Martha E. Soderberg, the murdered woman, went without its customary dish of mornings' and evenings' milk for two days and set up loud wails, resulted in suspicions of neighbors being roused, an investigation of the premises followed, then came the discovery of the body.

Erlend H. Soderberg, a stevedore employed in San Francisco but who resides at 463 B street in this city is under arrest at the city prison on a charge of murdering his mother Martha E. Soderberg by cutting her throat, stabbing her in the abdomen and then placing her body stalk up right in a closet. Never was there a more gruesome crime reported to the police and all the circumstances indicate that the son is the criminal.

The motive of the crime as yet is in doubt but it is known that mother and son quarreled several times just before the murder was committed. The aged woman reproached her son because he failed to provide for her. Aside from this one fact there does not appear to be any good reason why the son should have taken the life of his aged parent.

CRIME DISCOVERED

According to the police the crime was committed some time Saturday morning. No discovery was made until the next day when Olga H. Valentin, a neighbor called at the house to see why the dead woman had not according to her custom been out during the day.

When he entered the house everything was quiet. A large closet that ordinarily was left open was found to be locked. This aroused the suspicions of Valentin, who forced the door open and was horrified to find the corpse of Mrs. Soderberg standing upright, wrapped in blankets and other bed clothing.

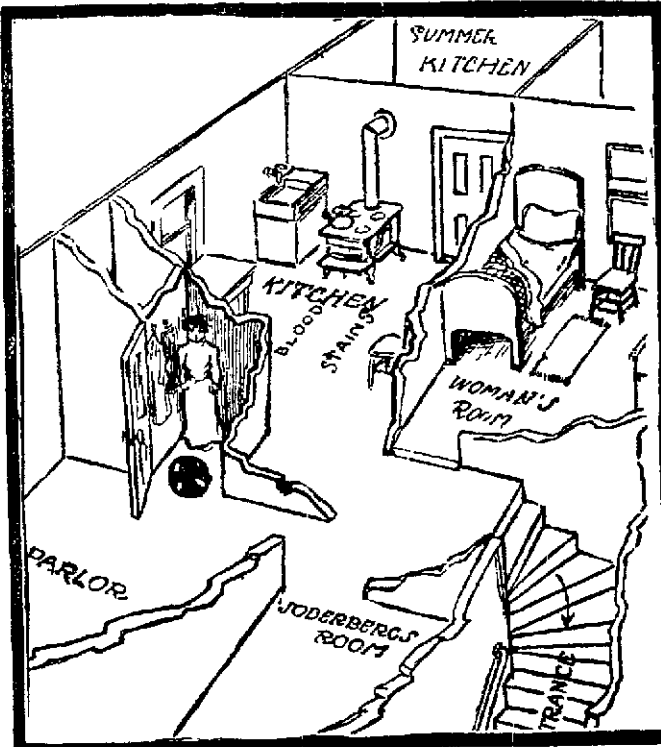

WOUND IN THROAT

A gaping wound in the throat told the story of how the tragedy had been enacted. A hasty investigation revealed the fact that not only was the woman stabbed in the throat, but that she had been wounded in the abdomen and in the thigh by a knife.

The police were notified immediately and responded to the call. When Detectives Hodgkins and Flynn arrived on the scene it was ascertained that the son was in San Francisco at his usual employment.

The fact that he had left home in the morning without informing anyone that his mother was dead or missing led to the suspicion that he might

MURDEROUS ASSAULT MADE ON TWO ITALIAN LABORERS

Pablo Gutierrez Charged With Shooting One and Slashing Another of His Countrymen.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 25.—Candido Garteguy, a laborer, lies dying in his room at the La Catalina Hotel 933 Stockton street and Pablo Gutierrez, also a laborer is locked up at the city prison on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder.

At 2 o'clock this morning it is alleged Gutierrez went to Garteguy's room and rousing the latter from his sleep demanded that he get up. As Garteguy stepped out onto the floor of his room it is asserted, he was grasped by Gutierrez who pulling a revolver from his pocket forced his victim's head against the wall and shot him in cold blood. After committing the atrocious crime he started stealthily for his own room but the shot had awakened Joseph Achabo, who also was in the La Catalina who followed Gutierrez and forced his way into the latter's room, whereupon Gutierrez grabbed an old rusty sword which was standing in a corner of the room and made a murderous assault upon the man. With blood streaming from several horrible gashes in his face inflicted at the hands of the would-be murderer, Achabo rushed out of the hotel down onto the street where he encountered officers Skelly and Kavanaugh.

Returning to the hotel and going to Gutierrez's room they found the door locked and were compelled to force it open. The occupant was in bed and pretended to be asleep when the officers and his second victim entered. The revolver, by which the first crime was committed was found by the officers hid in a shoe under the bed. One barrel of the firearm which was a Colt's 38-caliber, was empty and showed evidence of having been recently fired. When the officers attempted to arrest Gutierrez, he put up a desperate struggle and it was necessary to club him into submission.

OFFICIALS ARE SUMMONED TO REPEAT FACTS

Habeas Corpus Proceedings Brought by Ruef Are Dismissed.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 25.—Vice-President Louis Glass of the Pacific States Telephone and Telegraph company, is due to arrive in this city at 3 o'clock this afternoon on a river steamer from Sacramento. It is stated that he at once will give bail on the indictments brought against him by the grand jury.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 25.—Refreshed by their Sunday holiday the members of the grand jury were prompt at reassembling this afternoon to continue their session. Shortly after they convened at 1 o'clock, members of the telephone clique, summoned from Los Angeles, were called as witnesses.

There were only eight in the party as they assembled, but several others higher up are expected to testify. From these men the prosecution hope to get track of how the now famous "$200,000 sack" was spent in this city for the interests of the franchise asked at that time by the Home Telephone company.

The first witness called before the grand jury this afternoon was Samuel Jacoby fiscal agent for the Independent Telephone Company. Mr. Jacoby denied that he or his company had applied to A. Ruef to obtain franchise votes for them among the supervisors.

The next witness was James P. Adams, president of the Adams-Phillips Company of Los Angeles the bankers and brokers who have handled large amounts of Home Telephone securities.

This afternoon following a consultation with District Attorney Langdon in the grand jury rooms Sheriff O'Neill went to meet the river boat, California, which brought Vice-President Glass by the grand jury. The understanding is that Mr. Glass will be allowed nominal freedom, in charge of the sheriff, until this evening by which time it is expected he will have deposited the $50,000 bail required.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—On motion of the attorneys for the regular counsel of Abraham Ruef, of San Francisco, the habeas corpus proceedings in Ruef's behalf were today dismissed by the Supreme court of the United States. The attorney made no explanation of the motion. The court ordered that the mandate in the case issue at once.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 25.—The prosecution views the action of the defense in withdrawing from the United States Supreme court the application for a writ of error as a final laying down of arms against the prosecution of Ruef on the extortion charges before Superior Judge Dunne.

That is to say, the defense according to the view of the prosecution now expects to go forward with the trial to a verdict to avoid which Ruef's attorneys have bent all their efforts and expended all their resources.

The resumption of this trial is set before Judge Dunne for tomorrow but in view of the supreme importance of the investigation now being pursued by the grand jury, it is likely that the extortion trial will be continued until some later time.

ARREST EXPECTED.

According to a statement made this morning by Detective Burns the arrest of Louis Glass, vice-president of the Pacific States Telephone and Telegraph company, who has been indicted by the grand jury for bribing supervisors to grant franchises to his company, has not yet been effected, but may be at any time.

Mr. Burns' latest information is that Mr. Glass is traveling somewhere between Tonopah and Goldfield. Mr. Burns further stated that he has no news yet of the arrest of A. E. Detweiler also indicted for supervisory bribery in behalf of the Home Telephone company and who is supposed to be now in Cairo, Egypt.

SOME OF THE WITNESSES.

Among the witnesses scheduled for examination this afternoon by the grand jury are E. B. Cass, president of the Home Telephone Company of Los Angeles; William Mead, president of the Central Bank of Los Angeles; W. C. Patterson, also a Los Angeles banker; the latter two are directors of the Home Telephone Company. These three together with Frank M. Brown, J. M. McCable and J. F. Torrance all of Los Angeles are expected to give sensational testimony.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 25.—Abraham Ruef and Chief of Police Dunne were in Judge Dunne's court this morning on the indictments charging conspiracy and extortion. They were to have entered their pleas to the indictments but Hene and Burns being busy on the work of the grand jury, which resumes at 10 o'clock this afternoon, the cases were postponed for one week by the consent of both sides.

William C. Patterson, one of the Los Angeles capitalists summoned here to explain the connection of the officers of the Home Telephone Company with the payment of a large bribe to the supervisors is expected to arrive on the train which is due at noon.

The arrival of the others may be delayed by a fresh landslide on the Tehachapi Pass which has tied up traffic on both the Santa Fe and the Southern Pacific systems.

DETWEILER'S WHEREABOUTS.

Detective Burns still insists that A. E. Detweiler of Toledo is secreted in Cairo. He put notwithstanding the reports that have been sent out locating him somewhere between Toledo and this city on the way to the coast.

A sudden change in the plans of the prosecution was made this morning with respect to the calling of Marcus L. Gerstle, president of the Home Telephone Company. It was announced several days ago that Gerstle would be called as a voluntary witness. This morning it was announced by Hene that Gerstle will not be called before the jury. As to whether or not this decision indicated the indictment of Gerstle, Hene would not say.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 25.—Gavin McNab has come out strong in defense of the late supervisor, Samuel.

ROUTINE BUSINESS OF BOARD OF SUPERVISORS

County Road Lighting, Sprinkling and Maintenance Discussed—New Roads to Be Opened.

In the absence of President Mitchell, Supervisor Kelly was selected as chairman of the Board of Supervisors at the regular meeting held this morning. All members, except President Mitchell, responded to roll-call.

WANT FIVE CENT FARE.

In regard to the Oakland street car company's application for a street car franchise over the new line and other thoroughfares in Alameda, the Alameda Central Improvement Club and sixty-four residents of Alameda and neighboring territory petitioned the board to make a five-cent fare to and from the district to be served and a time schedule required as a condition of the granting of the franchise company's application.

SUFFERING FROM OVERFLOW.

T. Peterson, Southern Pacific Company Inspector at Fruitvale, sent a communication to the board reporting that a manhole located at the corner of the street and Lloyd avenue has been for several days spouting water, either owing to an obstruction in the sewer or its inability to carry off the storm water. The overflow is represented to be causing annoyance and some damage, and a simple method of relief is suggested to the board.

Thomas W. Hunter, of 1235 Tevis street, complains, in another communication, of the condition of the sewer in the same district. It was represented that these sewers were not under the board's supervision.

ROAD FOREMAN'S REPORT.

Inventories of County property in their possession were reported by road foreman, Fred Zimmerman, of Alameda road district, and by the foreman of the Central Pacific Highway company, the south end of the line of the railroad through the lower end of the city, and the city company's one-quarter of a mile to a point opposite the land of the Santa Clara Valley. ORDERED BY WOMAN SLAIN; HER HUSBAND SON ACCUSED

W. W. Henderson Kills Wife, Fatally Wounds Her Father, Then Shoots Self.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 25.—Mrs. Martha Odell, woman of many aliases, with two alleged husbands murdered under mysterious circumstances, was shot to death by William W. Henderson, who, after probably fatally wounding John Maxwell, the man who posed as her father, blew out his own brains. The account of the shooting is told in the following special dispatch:

FIVE SHOTS FIRED.

OREGON CITY, Ore., March 25.—As a result of a frightful tragedy here this morning, Mr. and Mrs. William W. Henderson are dead and John Maxwell, reputed father of the dead woman, is wounded, probably fatally. Henderson, half-crazed because his wife persisted in her refusal to live with him, fired five shots from a 38-caliber Colt's revolver, killing his wife, seriously wounding Maxwell, and then blew out his brains. The Hendersons were married in San Francisco March 30, 1906, and prior to the fire kept a lodging-house there.

Their married life was unhappy, however, and Mrs. Henderson went to Maxwell's home at Lafayette, El Dorado County, California. Maxwell is well known there, being a member of the Grand Army of the Republic and a past noble grand of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows.

SHE HAD MONEY.

Mrs. Henderson had been married four or five times and a former husband was named Odell. At his death he left her a 160-acre farm at Kerkby, Josephine County, Oregon, and she had considerable money, as $2,700 belonging to her was found in Maxwell's pocket.

Last January Mrs. Henderson commenced a suit for divorce in this city. This morning Henderson entered the William Tell House, where his wife and Maxwell were staying.

It seems the woman had married Henderson to keep him from testifying against her in a suit brought by John A. Horn in an Oakland court April 3, 1906, to recover $800, which Mrs. Henderson had received from John A. Horn, and induced him to put into a manning scheme of hers.

At one time the dead woman conducted a matrimonial agency in this city, in a most dishonest and daring manner.

Under pretense of securing a husband and a manager for a mythical mine in Amador County, she dominated unnumbered victims, taking from their savings and pitting her power over them against their pride.

John Horn made this statement in February, 1905:

"Two of the woman's supposed husbands have been murdered under suspicious circumstances. One, named Alexander, was shot in the back by Maxwell in a cabin at Lafayette several years ago. Maxwell claimed that he did the shooting in self-defense, and the woman swore at the trial that he was her father. Later she denied that she was his daughter. Another supposed husband was found dead in a mine in Amador with his head battered with quartz rocks. His name was Watts, and that was about 1891.

A man named Henderson, who was friendly with Mrs. Odell, is now serving time in the penitentiary for the murder. The woman has been known under the names of McManus, Graves, and Robinson. I think that the last is her maiden name."

What is it a week? It is a whole lot at the Jackson Hotel, 618 Twelfth street, Oakland.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

The following marriage license has been issued:

possibly know something about the crime.

It was almost impossible, the detective argued, for the son to leave the house Sunday morning without having noticed the absence of his mother.

SAYS HE OVERSLEPT.

His own explanation is that he overslept an hour in the morning and hastened away to his work in San Francisco without inquiring where his mother was, or waiting for his breakfast.

According to the stories of the neighbors, the mother always awakened her son and prepared breakfast for him. Maxwell should not have made an investigation when he was not awakened as usual, and why he should not have waited for his breakfast, are two questions to which the prisoner can give no satisfactory answer, with the exception of the fact that he was in a hurry and forgot.

BLOOD ON FLOOR.

The murderer after completing his diabolical work set about to clean up the evidence of it. The kitchen was in all probability the room in which the murder took place. Great stains of blood were on the floor and there, despite the fact that a wet rag had been used to clean up the evidence, there remained tell-tale traces which at once attracted the attention of the police.

A further search of the house resulted in the discovery of the towel with which the blood had been mopped up. The knife with which the crime was committed is missing, although the police have in their possession a dirk, which was found in the room and there are no bloodstains on it, and there is no way of telling whether it was connected with the tragedy or not.

TURNS ON OFFICERS.

Just as the son was entering the house, he was being seized back from San Francisco, turned angrily to the detectives and asked:

"Do you think that I killed my own mother?"

"How do you know she was killed?"

For a moment the son was nonplussed and replied that a friend had informed him in San Francisco.

He then asked if it were true that his mother was dead. On receiving an affirmative reply he sank into a chair and buried his face in his hands. He was handcuffed and taken to the city prison. He at no time offered resistance but attempted to show great sympathy for his mother.

BODY EXAMINED.

Drs. Mehrmann, Curdie and Reine called at the morgue at the request of the coroner and made an examination of the body. The body was found in the stomach. The first theory of suicide was completely set aside by these physicians.

The struggle in the kitchen as there were no evidences of violence save for the blood stains on the linoleum. After the woman had bled to death she was thrust into the closet.

William Johnson, a friend of Soderberg, after the arrival of the detectives volunteered to go to San Francisco and inform the son of what had transpired. On meeting him on the water front Johnson said:

"The son asked if she were ill. 'It is something worse than that,' replied Johnson.

The son did not reply to this or ask as to any particulars but crossed the bay with his mother's body.

This fact was taken by the detectives as an indication of the son's guilt. Last night at the city prison he passed a restless night. He did not sleep and he was very nervous.

"I am something worse than that," replied Johnson.

DINED WITH HIS BROTHER

Pembroke's Alibi Strengthened by Testimony of His Relatives.

If Grace Eaton goes on the witness stand and tells of the alleged conversation with Sheriff Frank Barnett, which the defense uses to attempt to impeach the testimony of the sheriff, she will not be arrested on a second charge of perjury. The district attorney says the information will be made out charging her with testimony she gave in the former robbery trial of her lover, Percy Pembroke, on which she was bound over to the Superior Court. The young woman is in attendance at the courthouse every day, but Attorney Church has not decided whether or not he will call the girl to the stand as a witness for the defense.

H. E. and Arthur Pembroke, brothers of the defendant, were on the stand this morning, pleading themselves to the truth and telling the jury of the alibi used by them to clear their young brother from the penitentiary. Both witnesses claim to have been at Arthur Pembroke's house, 36 Shattuck street, San Francisco, the night of October 8, 1904, and sat at the table with Percy, who on that night is charged with holding up Edward Stanley, an East Oakland barber, and for which crime James Crowhurst is now wearing stripes in San Quentin.

Arthur Pembroke became a victim of the time of day he had dinner, while Percy was at his house in October, 1904, and when they were painting the house. The sale of Arthur Pembroke's express business, on October 7, 1904, was the date on which the brothers based their memory of dates three years ago.

The Pembroke tell a clear alibi and have a new turn to meet every question on cross-examination. Attorney Church has not yet decided whether or not he will place Percy Pembroke on the witness stand in his own behalf.

SAYS ITALIANS DECEIVED HIM

Pietro Scorpiz and Giuseppe, accused of defrauding Paul Binello out of $750 by passing him a box full of iron washers and worthless confederate bills while they made away with the box full of real coins, are being tried today by a jury in Judge Ogden's court.

The trick said to have been operated by these two Italians was one of the boldest performed in the State a few months ago. Scorpiz and Giuseppe are said to have met Binello in Sacramento, where they are accused of having induced him to buy some real estate. The party freely put their coin into a capital fund and came down to Oakland and placed it in a small box. In this city they made plans for the purchase of the real estate. The present suit says the Italians said they had added $24,800 to the real estate fund and had placed the amount in a second box. The trio went to San Jose to buy some choice lots. Binello was given custody of the large box, while Scorpiz and Giuseppe are said to have taken the small box to San Francisco.

Binello states he waited in vain for his partners and after he gave up all hope of their returning opened the box to find it empty. Instead of the fortune he expected, Binello said he contained iron washers and worthless bills. The authorities were called into the case and the two Italians were apprehended and placed in the county jail.

BETTER DEAD THAN WORKING

So This Waiter Slashed His Throat and Later Died in Hospital.

Working for a living was too hard a task for L. Torassa, a waiter, aged 47 years, who resided at 916 Fifth street, and on Sunday evening he slashed his throat with a razor. Twelve hours later he died in the Providence Hospital.

The only reason he gave for taking his life was that working was too hard a way to go through life and that he preferred the oblivion of the grave.

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS DAMAGE BY FLOOD

Levees in Pierson District, South of Sacramento, Break; People in Danger.

lies very low on the hills this morning and the weather is cold and the sky shows signs of the storm breaking up.

LOSS TOTALS MILLIONS OF DOLLARS

ANTIOCH, March 25.—The islands near here are being flooded one by one. There has been no loss of life reported. Livestock is being taken to places of safety.

Millions of dollars will be lost by the flood. Following is a list of the tracts and islands already under water, together with the number of acres contained in each:

Byron tract, 6500 acres; Clifton tract, 3500 acres; Brooks tract, 3500 acres; Sargent's tracts, 3500 acres; Veale and Newhope tracts, 10,000; San Mound tract, 4000 acres; Upper and Lower Twitchell islands, 7500 acres; Pierson district, Staten island, 11,000 acres; Dyer and Union islands, 13,000 acres; Vincine island, 3500 acres; Brannan and Andrus islands, 9000 acres; Jersey island, 3750 acres; Upper and Lower Tyler, 12,000 acres; Victoria island, 7500 acres; Herriott island, 8000 acres.

This island had not been under water for thirty years before. Sherman, Grand and Sutter islands are among those left with the water at a point where it is liable to go over at any time. These islands comprise the great asparagus and vegetable districts and the flood will bankrupt many owners.

The rainfall was .36 for the last twenty-four hours; 28.37 for the season; 20.84 up to date for last season and 10.32 for month of March.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 25.—Storm and flood conditions throughout California are somewhat improved today, although portions of the great valleys are still threatened with inundation. The levees south of Sacramento break during last night and the residents of the district which was flooded are reported to be in danger. A relief party has been sent to effect their rescue.

The flood waters from the San Joaquin river have receded from the streets of Stockton, but the stream is still bank full and further rains may cause another rise. The weather is cold and there are indications of the storm breaking up. No news has been received this morning from the river islands in the vicinity of Stockton and Sacramento, many of which are under water. Many valuable crops have been destroyed and there has been considerable loss of stock.

Mount Hamilton range, near San Jose, and the Santa Cruz mountains are covered with snow, and there was also a slight fall of snow this morning on the hills back of Berkeley. The Santa Fe river is in flood, and the heavy rain will probably not exceed 50 per cent of the average.

At Vallejo heavy rain continues to fall and the flooded district has extended in the northeastern section of the town to such an extent that many people have left their homes. A number of cattle have been drowned and the railroad situation is unchanged. The Santa Fe line is open to the south, but a big washout on the Moss tract about a mile west of Stockton blocks traffic in that direction to San Francisco. Stocktonians who have business in San Francisco are awaiting themselves of the steamer lines.

Robert's Island, one of the biggest islands of the reclamations is reported safe this morning and the general situation in the delta is more encouraging.

The weather broke clear and cool this morning, but it is again clouding up and more rain seems assured.

ABOUT SACRAMENTO.

SACRAMENTO, March 25.—Reports from the Western Pacific are that the levees on Sherman, Grand and Sutter islands have withstood the flood waters and there is a general belief that the islands will be saved.

POLICE DEPARTMENT IS TO BE INVESTIGATED

GRAFTING DENOUNCED BY MINISTERS.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 25.—There was hardly a church which held services in observance of Palm Sunday in this city yesterday that did not have a portion of the sermon devoted to the recent revelation of extensive graft in the municipal government. The forceful sermon preached by the Rev. David Evans of Grace Church, the services of which are being held at the Crocker Memorial Home until the opening of the new church next Sunday, at Taylor and Sacramento streets, was typical of those preached throughout the city. In the course of his remarks, the text of which was, "Where There Is No Vision the People Perish," he said: "There is no man anywhere—not even the most besotted sensualist or the most corrupt hireling—looking at the Christ of Palm Sunday who would not confess, if asked by an inquisitor, that the character of this Jesus shows him what he ought to be and that the character of Judas, selling his Lord for gold, is that which he ought to shun as born of hell itself. Poor, unhappy Judas, he at least had some shame. He confessed without any promise of immunity that he had betrayed innocent blood. He threw down his price in the presence of his corruptionists and went and hanged himself. It would be well if other men—men of our city—professing to be members of Christian churches, whose souls are stained with the guilt of Iscariot, selling their honor for a price, felt and showed something of his remorse."

MRS. A. K. DETWEILER INTERVIEWED.

TOLEDO, O., March 25.—The Toledo police officials have been notified by the authorities of San Francisco to arrest A. K. Detweiler on sight. A message was received yesterday, and, although strict search has been made for Detweiler he has not been located. It is practically an established fact that reports from California detectives to the effect that Detweiler is in Egypt are erroneous. His wife is in this country, in this city, in fact, and has been interviewed. This evening she said: "I have nothing to say further than to corroborate the statement given out by my brother, George. Mr. Detweiler is on his way to San Francisco. I know nothing of his business dealings and did not know he had been indicted till I saw it in the papers." It is almost certain that A. K. Detweiler arrived in this country long before the statement issued says he did. From sources absolutely unquestionable the statement is made that George Detweiler and an attorney left Toledo several days ago and went to a small village near here for the purpose of meeting A. K. Detweiler. What developed at the meeting was never made public and the meeting itself is disputed by the Detweilers here. But this and the fact that Mrs. Detweiler is in the city, lead to the belief that A. K. Detweiler is really in this country. Whether or not he is on his Western trip is conjectural, but all his relatives insist upon the truth of the statement.

PROMISES SOME MORE SENSATIONS IN GRAFT

District Attorney Langdon Reviews and Anticipates Work of Present Grand Jury.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 25.—District Attorney Langdon declared last night that still more sensations would be developed in the graft investigations.

"San Francisco has been shocked by some of the disclosures already made," he said, "but it will have to brace itself for things more startling. Persons not directly associated with the investigation can form no adequate conception of the evidence in our possession, and the character of some of the persons who are involved in the city's shame. Beginning tomorrow, the investigation will take on new impetus."

NONE TO ESCAPE.

"No one who has helped to bring about the conditions which the investigation intends to correct will escape. This was decided before the investigation was begun, and the real object of our work has yet to be seen and appreciated. We intend to go right to the top of the corruptionists, and the civic sins of the Ruffs and Schnitzers will not be the only ones disclosed. Other and bigger penitents will soon be heard from protesting their innocence, but it won't take a great while to prove that they are more entitled to public censure than the self-confessed bribe-taking Supervisors."

CITY TO BE GAINER.

"The moral value of it all will compensate for its sordidness. San Francisco will be a great gainer in the end. It owes much to the Grand Jury now in session. I have never met a body of men inspired by higher motives, and could not wish for one more competent to perform the duties entrusted to it. It is proving itself a notable agency in the moral regeneration of the municipality."

TELEPHONE OFFICIALS ARE BEING QUESTIONED BY THE GRAND JURY

CALHOUN IS STILL AT HOME

Ruef's Statement Is Verified in New York.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 25.—Upon the authority of Abe Ruef it is said today that Patrick Calhoun, president of the United Railroads, has not yet started from his home in New York for this city. "I see that the papers declare Calhoun has left New York," said the curly boss last night. "I am given reliable information that this is not so, and that the head of the United Railroads has not left for the Pacific Coast."

An intimate friend of Calhoun in this city announces with the appearance of certainty that Calhoun purposely delayed his departure for the west to consult his attorneys in New York.

It is asserted by his friends that the president of the United Railroads is preparing to enter upon the fight of his life to retain for the corporation its valuable interests in San Francisco. An array of attorneys from the east will be a feature of the release of President Calhoun when he crosses the continent, and these, in conjunction with the road's local attorneys, will use every effort to thwart the revocation of either privileges or franchises.

The local legal force, at the head of which is the firm of Garber & Creswell and Trevelyan & Ford, will render valuable assistance.

STILL IN NEW YORK. NEW YORK, March 25.—In confirmation of Ruef's assertion that Patrick Calhoun, president of the United Railroads, has not yet left this city, a correspondent called at the Calhoun residence a late hour last night and was informed by the valet that Calhoun was at home, but could not be disturbed. The valet volunteered the information that the street railway magnate was angry at being disturbed and would make no statement regarding his plans or the hour of his departure for the west.

PARIS, March 25.—As a result of the cabinet meeting today it was decided to send French troops to occupy Oudja, a frontier town in Morocco, until the Moorish government gives full satisfaction to France for the assassination of M. Mauchamp. The French demands for reparation will be forwarded to Fez immediately.

TIN PLATE FACTORY DAMAGED BY FIRE. CINCINNATI, March 25.—A loss of $100,000 was caused by a fire in the F. H. Lawson Tin Plate factory in the West End today.

SHORTCHANGED BY VERY SMOOTH MAN. Mrs. A. Holst, who conducts a store at 1571 Seventh street, reported to the police today that a stranger had "short changed" her to the amount of $10 yesterday after making a small purchase.

Some Sensational Testimony Is Expected.

Braunhardt. His statement is self-explanatory. It reads: "To the Editor: In justice to a dead man who served this city well, I cannot refrain from answering a false, cowardly and extremely indecent article that appeared in a newspaper and which purported to be an account of proceedings before the Grand Jury. It is there stated that Supervisor Boxton had said that the supervisors pre-empting the present board had accepted bribes, and that the board under Braunhardt's leadership had protected the Pacific States Telephone Company for six years."

LIVING CAN ANSWER. "Most of the former supervisors are living, and if they think that their reputations require them to answer any statements of a confessed catalogue of felonies, like Boxton, it is for them to act. But Braunhardt is dead; he is not here to answer. It will be fortunate if his record lives. It will be more than a Boxton, more than sixteen Boxtons to take it away."

WOULD BELIEVE PHELAN. "If Mr. Phelan and his board protected any telephone company the public has waited a long time to learn the fact—waited until informed by Boxton. I would be sorry to think that Phelan accepted a bribe, and in a dispute on the subject between him and Boxton I would have to lean toward Phelan."

The board succeeding, of which Braunhardt was a member, never, as far as I can remember, had telephone questions before it, and as no vote was taken on the subject there could have been nothing to produce a bribe. In the next board during its last year telephone matters were prominent. I am not entirely familiar with the matter, but my memory is that the subject never came to a vote of the board, and during the time of greatest discussion Braunhardt was doing in a little room south of Market street that constituted his home.

GAS RATES REDUCED. "Braunhardt, however, did take the ground on this and on all franchises that, as the charter declared for public ownership of all utilities, no franchise of any kind should be granted unless a public necessity, and then only for the shortest period. During his term gas rates were reduced, water rates were reduced. He aggressively fought the overhead trolleys and was instrumental in having the last board defeat the measure."

"He was the author of the law whereby street railroads must give school children half fares. He gave force and shape to the movement for making the Geary street Railway a municipal road and caused to be appropriated the first money for its construction."

DIED A POOR MAN. "If anybody can figure bribes or boodle from that record he must be clever."

"His closest friend and adviser in all public matters, the man who influenced his life and directed his work, was Judge James V. Coffey—surely not a wicked man or an enemy of the public. He lived a poor man, he died a poor man. But he lived honest and died honest. He served the people conscientiously, intelligently. It is not difficult to understand why a man morally pure, like Boxton, should seek to defame a good man's memory. Several years ago, when gas rates were being considered, Boxton in person led four other supervisors, none of the five being a Democrat, to the gas company and demanded a large sum of money, threatening otherwise to fix a blackmailing rate. This came to the knowledge of Braunhardt, who defeated the criminal conspiracy, and ever afterwards denounced Boxton as corrupt and unfit for public place. It was through charges made by Braunhardt that Boxton was refused nomination on the fusion board last election. Rudolph Spreckels was a director of the gas company at the time these events occurred. He knows whether his company was paid a cent to Braunhardt and the men who defeated

MUST GO TO TRIAL AT ONCE

Last Barrier Gone Against Facing His Jury.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 25.—Peremptory orders have been sent by Abe Ruef's counsel to lawyers engaged in Washington to withdraw the writ of error recently filed with the United States Supreme Court. This is upon the authority of Attorney Frank Murphy.

"We have instructed our representative in Washington to withdraw the writ of error filed by us," said Murphy last night. "This decision was reached on account of the decision of the State Supreme Court to the effect that the participation of an incompetent juror does not affect the validity of an indictment. We will proceed without further delay with the trial of Abe Ruef."

MILDER CHARGE. This decision pulls the last prop from under the delay tactics built up by the defense. This is construed to mean that Ruef is desirous to go to trial on the really mild charge of extortion rather than face the more serious charges growing out of the bribery indictments.

When the decision of the State Supreme Court was handed down, denying the writ of error, an appeal was immediately taken to the highest court. Ruef's lawyers did not then seem inclined to accept as final the decision of the State court.

Since the first day in court Ruef's attorneys have sought by every means known to crafty lawyers to delay his trial. Objections after objections were registered with Judge Dunne. He invariably ruled out the objections and then would come an appeal to the State Supreme Court, the United States District Court, the Superior Court over which Judge Hebbard presided and to Presiding Judge Coffey for a change of venue. At every turn defeat was handed out to Ruef. He had no legal means by which he could delay the trial.

As all the legal means have been exhausted for delay it is probable that Ruef will go to trial on Tuesday morning.

SCORES BOXTON. "This shameless, degraded wretch, dead in all things for which true men live, hopes for revenge by smearing his evil over an honored grave. The dead Braunhardt must be assaulted for having tried to make living Boxtons less noxious to mankind."

"There is another phase of this matter which should appeal to Judge Coffey. The Grand Jury is the servant of the court. The prosecution is conducted by officers of the court. The law commands that the proceedings of the jury be secret. Who is the officer of the court or the jurymen who carries these slanders of living and dead that come from unclean lips to one newspaper?"

"GAVEN McNAB."

MEN OF SOUTH ARE TO VISIT GRAND JURY SOON

Los Angeles Telephone Officials Leave Today in Answer to "Forthwith" Subpoenas.

LOS ANGELES, March 25.—To answer the "forthwith" subpoenas to appear before the San Francisco Grand Jury investigating the graft charges in connection with the franchise of the Home Telephone Company, A. B. Case, president of the Los Angeles Home Telephone Company, will leave for the north today. William Mead, president of the Central Bank, and W. C. Patterson, vice-president of the First National bank, will leave on the same train.

Of the nine men summoned to appear, James H. Adams of the Adams-Phillips Company and James L. Martin, secretary of the same concern, have gone to San Francisco. The others would have left tonight, but were unable to obtain accommodations.

NO PAPERS DEMANDED. Frank W. Wachter is the tenth man on the list of subpoenas served by Detective Fox in this city. He expects to leave with the others. Neither of the bankers have been ordered to bring books or papers concerning the accounts of their customers at the banks. Patterson and Mead insist that they will be unable to give testimony that will assist the Grand Jury or the district attorney of San Francisco.

All efforts to learn the identity of the ten men of Los Angeles who furnished $10,000 each for the "preliminary" work necessary before the Supervisors of San Francisco would agree to advertise the telephone franchise for sale, proved unavailing. That the ten men did form a pool of $100,000 several months prior to the granting of the franchise, and that the money was taken to San Francisco is certain.

DISCUSSED MATTER. Several members spoke freely of their $10,000 subscription and mentioned to friends that "it took money, and a lot of it, to do business in San Francisco when the goal to be attained was a telephone franchise."

William Mead, president of the Central bank, admitted tonight that this might be the purpose in subpoenaing him. He declared, however, that he would be unable to give the desired information.

"Did any of the men mentioned as being connected with the San Francisco Home Telephone franchise draw $10,000 from your bank at about the time the deal went through or the first pool was formed?" was asked.

"I cannot tell," was the answer of the bank president.

MEAD TALKS. "It is true I am a small stockholder in the San Francisco Home Telephone Company, but I acquired the shares some time after the franchise was granted. Prior to that I had nothing to do with the company. However, I am obeying the subpoena and hope to have the ordeal over with quickly so that I can get back here."

Both President Case and J. S. Torrance maintain absolute silence in regard to the newest feature of the case, viz.: The $100,000 sent to San Francisco several months prior to the time when Torrance and Martin went from this city to San Francisco with the $200,000.

NOW HENEY HAS NEW WEAPON.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 25.—Ruef's great desire to be revenged on Assistant District Attorney Heney has brought him into another danger. His efforts to injure Heney in Arizona make possible his indictment there on a charge of conspiracy.

Ruef sent Howard Harron, of the City Attorney's office to Arizona to scratch the country with a fine tooth comb with the view of securing an indictment against Heney because of the shooting of Dr. Hendy. He found Dr. Hendy's former admirers were now enthusiastic over Heney.

A young woman detective was sent by Ruef to Heney under the guise of a reporter to interview him on the subject. Warned of her culpability she left the task at its very beginning. For three months Ruef men have been working on the task of bringing about Heney's downfall.

In the meantime the astute prosecutor has been taking notes. Arizona justice is swift. Heney's information is strong enough to base the asking of conspiracy indictments against the curly boss.

ONE DAY of WORRY for ABE RUEF

LAWYERS FIGHT OVER FEES.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 25.—Matters have so adjusted themselves that there is likely to be an open rupture at any time in the ranks of Ruef's lawyers. First and most of the time the disagreements have been over fees, a division of these already received and those to come, and the farther fact that Ruef himself is trying to curtail his promises of payments for work yet to be done.

Most of the conferences at the St. Francis Hotel have been over this question. The one point of agreement reached, however, is that the defense has been bungled. Ruef blames the lawyers, the lawyers blame Ruef and all blame each other.

The greatest blunder of all is said to be the escape of Ruef to Trocadero. Since then Special Agent Burns has by means of Elisor Biggy kept Ruef incommunicado as to Supervisors and others when freedom might have meant much.

The Task of the City Administration

For the first time in a great many years a municipal administration has been given a renewed lease of power. All the executive officers have been re-elected with substantial unanimity—a testimonial of popular confidence without a parallel in the history of the city. A majority of the Council was re-elected, and that body is in harmony with the policy of the Mayor.

This is a splendid augury for the future. It is proof that the people are heartily in favor of good, clean, progressive government, and will give it enthusiastic support if their faith is justified by works. During Mayor Mott's two years in office, the electors have voted successive bond issues for sewers and parks, besides approving a supplementary bond issue to complete the schools. This is a tribute to the Mayor's zeal and efforts in behalf of efficient administration.

But the signal and unprecedented endorsement of the administration was not intended solely as a commendation for past performances. It was largely an expression of hope for the future—an answer to the roll call of progress. The people expect to see more accomplished during the ensuing two years than was accomplished during the last two. That is why they have given him a unanimous vote of confidence and a free hand to carry out his plans. He has done so well that he has convinced the people he will do all he can and will do better if backed by popular support and seconded by the legislative department. For that reason they voted to amend the charter largely at his request.

It is not possible to always live up to expectations, but one can try. That is what sensible men depend upon Mayor Mott doing. They are confident he will do the very best he can for the city. He has made a beginning that has rejoiced enlightened and public-spirited men, and they want to see him go ahead—they will back him as long as he tries conscientiously and intelligently to do so. He now has opportunity before him, and high expectancy on the part of the public should spur him to his best endeavor.

The present needs of the city are many and large, and they cannot be all met at once. Nobody of sense should expect them to be, but conditions demand the putting forth of extraordinary effort. There must be no dallying nor haphazard way of doing things. At a bound the city has outgrown its equipment and the methods which have sufficed, in a way, during the past. The general growth and activity in the community at large must be reflected in the spirit, method and energy of the municipal administration. If it be, Mayor Mott will close his second term standing even higher in public expectation than he does now.

That old gag about the farmers having enough rain appears to be too damp and limp to even lift up its head.

Does Mr. Heney propose to establish a general telephone exchange at San Quentin? If he does, it is to be hoped that "central" can be induced to be a trifle more diligent and intelligent than heretofore.

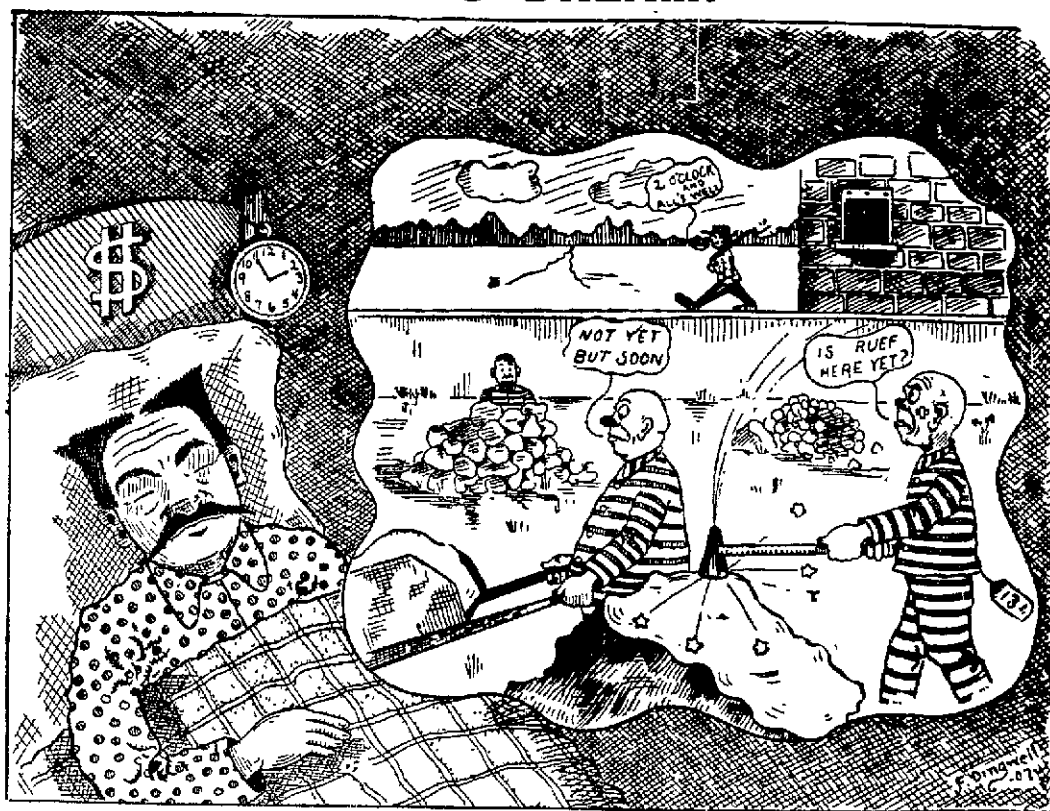

We have as yet seen no authoritative denial from Mr. Langdon or Mr. Heney of the statement that the boodling Supervisors were given a written guarantee of immunity from prosecution and removal from office if they would confess. If such a guarantee was given it is likely to have an unfavorable effect on the trial of persons against whom the confessed boodlers testify. As a rule juries give little credence to self-confessed scoundrels who testify against alleged accomplices under promise of immunity.

The California Promotion Committee has issued a bulletin giving a statement of the banking, postal and manufacturing business within fifty miles of San Francisco as compared with the same radius around Los Angeles. All other cities and towns are ignored. Oakland, Berkeley, Alameda, San Jose, Redwood City, Petaluma and San Rafael are lumped together to swell San Francisco's showing. It is a characteristic bit of work. The committee should change its name to the San Francisco Boosting Committee.

THE TRIBUNE yesterday morning contained a double page advertisement of a new department store opened in Oakland by a San Francisco house—S. N. Wood & Co. The addition of such an establishment to the mercantile equipment of the city is a striking evidence of growth and importance that deserves more than passing notice. It is worthy of note also that S. N. Wood & Co. not only published the largest advertisement ever given out by an Oakland department store, but published it exclusively in THE TRIBUNE. This is a recognition of the fact that an advertisement in this paper fully covers the trade territory on this side of the bay. The opening of John Breuner's fine new furniture house Saturday night was another event of importance to Oakland. Mr. Breuner occupies all the floors of a six-story building planned and erected for his exclusive use. His establishment is one of the most complete of its kind on the Pacific Coast. Oakland keeps on growing.

The so-called "stage Irishman" has not brought half as much discredit to the Irish race as the men who riot and throw rotten eggs in protest. The "stage Irishman" was originally created by Irish authors and Irish actors, and while he is often presented as a grotesque and vulgar caricature of the genuine Irishman he has never discredited the Irish people in the minds of sensible persons. The public is familiar with the stage German, the stage Frenchman, the stage Yankee, the stage Negro and the stage Jew—all of them as unrepresentative as the comic Celt of cheap vaudeville. The "Pike" Missourian and the rural scarecrow from down East are in the same class with the caricature of an Irishman so familiar in horseplay farce. Instead of being harmed by being caricatured on the stage, people are improved. It shows them what to avoid and teaches them by object lesson how ridiculous provincialism and race idiosyncrasies can be made. A band of farmers trying to wreck a comic journal for printing hayseed cartoons would not be more absurd than the crowd of indignant Celts who broke up performance after performance in one of San Francisco's cheap theaters. The Irish race is not to be elevated by ructions having a strong flavor of Donnybrook Fair and "Tim Finnigan's."

ABE'S DREAM.

Republics as Colonizers.

The San Francisco Chronicle compares Japan's colonizing methods with our own to our disfavor. We see no reason to worry about it. The colonizing business is one we should keep out of, more especially when it is mixed up with conquest, religious proselytism, speculative exploitation and race assimilation. Still the Chronicle is wrong in assuming that republics are not fitted for colonizing work. In new and unoccupied lands the republican spirit is adapted above all others to establishing new communities under new conditions, and the republican spirit is largely racial. It was not the English Government but the English people that colonized North America. The Dutch have been colonizing in the East Indies for 300 years, but all they have done has been to establish a foreign administrative system for the natives. That is practically what England has done in India, and what France is trying to do in Cambodia. In ancient times republics were the most successful colonizers. The Greeks dotted the shores of the Mediterranean with colonies. Carthage followed the example of the Hellenes, and Rome was the greatest colonizer of all. She not only built new communities in strange and distant lands, but impressed upon the peoples over whom she extended her dominion, her laws, religion, customs, speech and literature. All Northern Africa was Roman at one time, and Spain and France today reflect the ancient civilization of Rome. Despotism has never succeeded in colonization.

Congressman Bartlett suggests Hoke Smith, Cleveland's Secretary of the Interior, as the Democratic candidate for President in 1908. Hoke is only sound on one of the two cardinal principles. Horace Greeley said the Democrats possessed—love rum and hate niggers. Hoke is a lyncher all right, but he is a Prohibitionist.

HOW TO BUILD UP OAKLAND.

EDITOR TRIBUNE: There is nothing in which all its citizens may participate, more helpful in promoting the growth and general advancement of a town than earnest, enthusiastic talk in its favor as a place for a home, for business and for profitable investment. Let those whose interests are in Oakland adopt and carry out this simple policy with unanimity and hearty purpose, and the beneficial results will become manifest in a short time.

Confidence in the future of one's own town manifested at all times and under all circumstances inspires confidence in outsiders who may be visiting in the town socially or with business intent. Make it a rule to always talk in favor of your home town. Sing its praises in tones of earnest faith, not in fulsome exaggeration, not senseless boasting, not by disparaging other places, but by citing facts as they are and applying common sense reasoning to sustain your claims.

Talk of the unrivaled situation in point of natural advantages for the making of a great and beautiful city. The bay on the west, with its miles of prospective wharves and docks, the beautiful landlocked harbor on the south, with its perfect dockage facilities, the unequalled transit accommodations by electric cars and steam locals, the grand and picturesque background of foothills to the northward and eastward, offering most attractive sites for the development of spacious villas and elaborate grounds by persons of wealth, culture and refinement who almost invariably seek the highlands where to make their homes.

Talk of the vast extent of valley stretching eastward, lying between the foothills and San Leandro bay—a natural site for a great city—of the attractions of climate, scenery, boulevards and surrounding suburbs, of the high educational advantages afforded by nearness to the Universities of California and Stanford. And last, but by no means least, talk of the fact that Oakland is built on the mainland, that here is the terminus of the transcontinental railroads, and here must consequently be established great manufacturing industries and other enterprises tributary to rail and ocean-carrying trade. In fact, you may with perfect confidence assert that the future great city on San Francisco bay is to be on the east side, and that Oakland is today the beginning of that great city.

Here you might speak with enthusiastic pride of the large and magnificent hotels in process of development, of the fine, up-to-date business blocks under construction and planned to be erected, of the large and prominent business concerns from other places that are seeking leaseholds in Oakland, and finally of the fact that the population of Oakland, urban and suburban, has so greatly increased in the last year as has imposed upon her merchants almost a greater volume of business than they have facilities to accommodate.

What, then, would be the conclusion of all this? Naturally and logically that realty values in Oakland are on a very low plane by comparison with what they are sure to attain to, and that those who want to profitably invest, should not hesitate to buy Oakland realty, as values are inevitably to advance in great ratio.

Talk along these lines and in the strain suggested, and Oakland will steadily forge ahead from the impetus given by your earnest expression of confidence, for this will inspire confidence in others and they, in turn, will so talk, and resultantly Oakland will be effectively and widely advertised in a most favorable way and substantial progress will rapidly ensue.

Pointed Paragraphs

Not any article of food undergoes poisonous changes so rapidly as fish. And no stale food is so poisonous as stale fish. If any one fish is worse than another in this regard it is mackerel. Fish should be cooked as soon after being caught as possible. And what cannot be eaten should be thrown away. Soured mackerel left in the larder for twenty-four hours is very unwholesome.

A simple remedy for facial eruptions: One dram of precipitated sulphur, one dram of spirits of camphor, twenty grains of powdered tragacanth, one and one-half ounces of lime-water, rosewater sufficient to make four ounces. Apply at night and bathe away next morning, when the skin should be anointed with creme marquée. Keep the digestive organs active, bathe daily and drink plenty of water.

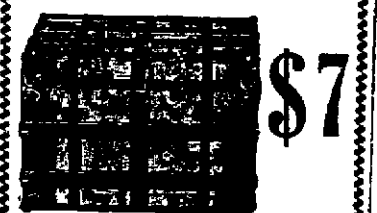

To disinfect a book which has been in the sick room wash the cover with some good purifier and put the book out in the open air for one day, where the sun can beat down upon it with all force. One of the best disinfectants is the black or crude carbolic acid. For each drain, basin or bathtub, pour one tablespoonful, then with boiling water cleanse out the pipe. In all cases of sewer gas this will prove an excellent purifier and give to any house or apartment a healthy odor. This hint is especially intended for those who live in town, but country dwellers will find it useful in case of the kitchen sink, pipe, etc.

Golf is one of the best of winter sports for a woman. It provides a steady, gentle exercise with a great wealth of cold fresh air rushing into the lungs. It involves a long walk, a sort of tramping back and forth over the hills, while the long strokes of the sticks bring the whole body into gentle activity. But one must not forget to be careful, too, for danger lurks in the long, barren stretches of winter fields. One should never play until very tired, for the searching winds can then easily chill her body and she cannot resist taking cold. Sometimes golf is possible after a light fall of snow, but the shoes should be heavy and water proof and the skirts should be six or eight inches off the ground. The clothes should be light and warm and the face should be protected by an invisible armor of cold cream rubbed in before going out.

SHE'S DOOMED TO FAILURE.

"That young woman will never attain society leadership," said a fashionable matron at a recent dinner party, referring to an exceedingly prepossessing girl in her second or third season. "Why not?" her companion asked. "She is pretty, accomplished, 'vivacious' enough, and her family is all right." "All true enough," was the matron's positive response. "But this is the third time this season that I have been in company where she was present and I have never seen her conversing for more than fifteen seconds with anyone but her escort. Any woman who is guilty of that is doomed to failure. She may make a good wife or mother, but society leader, no. I've seen too much of it."—New York Globe.

Women Who Wear Well

It is astonishing how great a change a few years of married life often make in the appearance and disposition of many women. The freshness, the charm, the brilliancy vanish like the bloom from a flower which is rudely handled. The matron is only a dim shadow, a faint echo of the charming maiden. Few young women appreciate the shock of the system through the change which comes with marriage and motherhood. Many neglect to deal with the unpleasant pelvic drains and weaknesses which too often come with marriage and motherhood, not understanding that this secret drain is robbing the cheek of its freshness and the form of its fairness.

As surely as the general health suffers when there is derangement of the health of the delicate womanly organs, so surely when these organs are established in health the face and form at once witness to the fact in renewed comeliness. More than a million women have found health and happiness in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Ingredients on label—contains no alcohol or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is made wholly of those native, American, medicinal roots most highly recommended by leading medical authorities of all the several schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments.

For nursing mothers, or for those broken-down in health by too frequent bearing of children, also for the expectant mothers, to prepare the system for the coming of baby and make its advent easy and almost painless, there is no medicine quite so good as "Favorite Prescription." It can do no harm in any condition of the system. It is a most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nerve, nicely adapted to woman's delicate system by a physician of large experience in the treatment of woman's peculiar ailments.

Bad Symptoms. The woman who has periodical headaches, backache, sees imaginary dark spots or specks floating or dancing before her eyes, has gnawing distress or heavy full feeling in stomach, faint spells, dragging-down feeling in lower abdominal or pelvic region, easily startled or excited, irregular or painful periods, with or without pelvic catarrh, is suffering from weaknesses and derangements that should have early attention. Not all of above symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time.

Neglected or badly treated and such cases often run into maladies which demand the surgeon's knife if they do not result fatally. No medicine extant has such a long and numerous record of cures in such cases as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. No medicine has such a strong professional endorsement of each of its several ingredients—worth more than any number of ordinary non-professional testimonials. The very best ingredients known to medical science for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments enter into its composition.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original "Little Liver Pills" first put up by old Dr. Pierce over 40 years ago. Much imitated, but never equaled. They cleanse, invigorate and regulate stomach, liver and bowels, curing biliousness and constipation. Little sugar-coated granules—easy to take as candy.

Dr. Pierce may be consulted by letter free of charge. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser (1000 pages) is sent free on receipt of 21 or 25 cent stamps for paper-covered, or 31 cent stamps for cloth-bound copy. Address publisher for information.

THE TRIBUNE TROPHY TOURNEY

MOST BEAUTIFUL ARM

IN ALAMEDA COUNTY

NOVEL CONTEST IS BOUND TO BE A GRAND GO

The question of who, among Alameda county females, has the loveliest arm, has served to inspire a TRIBUNE reader, evidently a scientist, to contribute to these columns the following remarks:

"Your 'tourney' to decide the matter of most classically-shaped arm is causing a wide spread interest, and it is a capital plan, but below the surface of your subject, the arm, is a wonder-field.

"One's arm, to comprise from shoulder to finger tips, is a combination, in bone-work, of many factors. The upper arm-bone, the 'humerus,' is toggle-jointed, at the elbow, with the 'ulna' and the 'radius,' the two forearm bones, and they are united by cartilage (ligatures) with the 'carpal,' or wrist bones, which, in their turn, connect with the various bones forming the hand, with its thumb and fingers—the 'phalanges.'

"Above this bony arrangement is that marvelous 'packing' of muscles, nerves, blood vessels and adipose tissue, while the snugness of fit of skin over flesh and the various interior adjuncts, is indeed a phenomenal phase. Add to all this mass of parts the gearing action of the human arm, wrist, hand and the combined result is certainly astonishing. So, again, when we come to contemplate the exterior view of the finely formed arm of a girl or woman, with shape made diversified by exquisite taperings, and color tones often so rich in prettiness, then are we apt to think of Dana Nature as indeed a veritable magician. Yes, THE TRIBUNE arm contest is a good thing, and every possessor of a nice arm, among the womankind of the county, ought to see that your undertaking is a big success."

Now, lady reader, what fancy you of this communication? If you are eligible to be swayed by argument in that message, let word arrive from you tomorrow. Address, "Phidias, Editorial Department, OAKLAND TRIBUNE," and an order on Bushnell's, 532 Fourteenth street, will be mailed you promptly. She who competes, and exhibits the loveliest arm, will gain the first prize, one dozen pairs of silk stockings. Let there be a large accession tomorrow to the list of entries. Send your own photo, if you have one that pleases you, or else white to "Phidias." The candidate arm must be bare from shoulder, and the posing should be subtly graceful.

MOST BEAUTIFUL WOMAN IN U. S.

Venus of the United States Lives in the East.

WILKESBARRE, March 25.—Alderman Millar, of Scranton, declares that the prettiest woman in America is Miss Blodwin Reese, of Edwardsville, whom he married on Saturday evening to Lewis Newton, of this city.

"She is the prettiest woman I ever saw," said the alderman, "and although tastes differ, I think that ninety-nine out of every one hundred men would agree with me could they see her. When the couple walked into the office I was dumbfounded. I didn't think one woman could possess so much beauty. She is a typical brunette, with hair like the raven's wing, magnificent coloring, and with a mouth like Cupid's bow. She is just a little above the height of the average woman, and her figure is absolutely faultless. Yes, I think that we have America's most beautiful woman right here among us, and if New York, Chicago and Philadelphia were to enter their aspirants for the honor in a beauty contest, I think they would lose."

SPECIMENS OF SAYINGS OF CHILDREN AT HOME

Original Solutions of Old Questions

Recorded in "Sunday at Home." The following are only specimens of many sayings that are here collected: One small urchin fancied that he had at last got to the other side of omnipotence. With one boot off and the other on he yelled: "Nobody—not a body—can fasten my boot." "God can," said his sister, reprovingly. "He can't," persisted the other doggedly, "cause it's got no buttons."

Here is another illustration of the remorseless logic of childhood: "Why was the world drowned?" Tiny mite triumphantly: "Cause, teacher, it couldn't float!" "How do you suppose they filled up their time in the ark?" Little fellow, tentatively: "Fish."

Other little fellow, scornfully: "Couldn't; there were only two worms." A new theologian speaks in this judgment: "It isn't the bones that goes to heaven," exclaimed one little sister to another, "it's something in the tummy!" While another solves the question of personal responsibility very sagaciously: A clergyman's daughter, before being put to bed, uttered this somewhat remarkable prayer: "And, dear Lord, this afternoon I saw out on the cold sidewalk a poor little girl, and she had no shoes or stockings on, and—"

(followed by a silence, as though the little mind were wrestling with the problem), she concluded: "But it's none of our business, is it, God?"

LONELY ONE, IN A HURRY, ADVERTISES FOR A WIFE

Farmer Uses a Paper to Do His Courting

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., Mar. 25.—S. B. Crouse of Orange township wants a wife, and has inserted the following advertisement in a local paper:

WANTED—S. B. CROUSE would like to correspond with a middle-aged lady, with a view to matrimony; present occupation, farming. Orangeville R. F. D. No. 2. As Crouse is in a hurry, he believes that advertising for a wife is his best plan. He is perfectly frank regarding his disposition, financial standing and all other matters, and expects those answering his advertisement to be equally so. Should he go courting in the usual manner, he says, he would probably waste a great deal of time before he found the woman he wants. He has a comfortable home and a nice farm. He also has grown-up children, who expect to be married in the near future. After they are gone he will feel lonely, and for this reason wants

"IS DEAR, SWEET GIRL"—SAYS THIS OF HER RIVAL

"She's a Good Fellow," Says Other One

KANSAS CITY, March 25.—"I think Miss Farrow a dear, sweet girl. You can rest assured of one thing. There will be no hair pulling in this contest. I esteem my opponent too highly. Whichever wins, I am sure the fight will be a clean one. There will be no complaint from the loser."

Miss Avis E. Chadborn, candidate on the Democratic ticket on the West Side for city treasurer, commented thus this morning. Miss Tiera Farrow, her opponent, has said she thought Miss Chadborn a "jolly good fellow."

SMILES BEAT TALK.

"I am like Miss Farrow," Miss Chadborn continued, "in that I don't talk very much. However, I am on the platform at every party meeting. When my name is called by the chairman I go forward, say a few words, smile in my nicest manner and stand long enough to let everyone in the hall have a good look at me. I think I can obtain as many votes by my smile as in any other way. Roosevelt won thousands of votes with his grin when he didn't have time to say a word."

EASTER'S BONNET.

When asked what she would do to offset the effect which Miss Farrow's new Easter hat would have on the male voters, Miss Chadborn laughed.

"I like to make a good appearance always," she said, "so when I received the Democratic nomination I invested in an extra fine new dress on the chances of my winning in the election. I guess that is the reason Miss Farrow bought a new hat."

At this moment Miss Chadborn looked towards her hat, which lay on a chair. She picked it up and inspected it critically. To the mind of the visitor it seemed a very fetching creation.

MUST BE IN STYLE.

"Come to think of it," she said slowly, "it is an ugly looking old thing—almost two months behind the times in style. It won't do at all. I must win this race at any cost. Tomorrow I buy a new one." The last words were said with much decision.

Miss Chadborn is a public stenographer on the West Side. Even those who will not vote for her in the coming election confess that she is possessed of considerable beauty. She says she is going to fight hard to win.

ASKS STORK TO BRING HER A BABY BROTHER

Detroit Girl of Seven Makes Request

DETROIT, March 25.—"Mr. Stork, Central Park, New York. Please bring me a baby brother. I know that there was a Mr. Stork in the New York Central Park Zoo, and I thought that if I wrote to him, he would surely bring the baby."

This was the letter written by Frances E. Stevens, aged seven, daughter of Dr. Rollin H. Stevens, a prominent physician in this city.

Frances got the following letter, written on the stationery of the New York City Park Board:

"Your request of the 8th reached me this morning. At the present time we are all out of baby boys. However, the first one that comes along, I will see that it is sent to you without delay. You will have to furnish your own clothes."

"M. F. LOUGHMAN, Secretary Park Board."

"Is the baby really coming?" asked little Frances, excitedly, when a newspaper representative called to see her. "Do you know anything about him?" You see, I wanted a little brother to play with, and as I had heard of the eagle that takes things away and the stork that brings them back, I thought I would write to Mr. Stork to bring me one. I knew that there was a Mr. Stork in the New York Central Park Zoo, and I thought that if I wrote to him, he would surely bring the baby. I would sew all day to make the clothes. I could give him some of my things, for boy babies wear the same kind of clothes as girls. I would be willing to give him my boy's suit, too, when he got old enough to have it."

"But, Frances," interrupted Mrs. Stevens, "it has taken you all day to him that handkerchief that you are working on."

"Well, if I had a little brother I would sew all the time, and I could make him lots of clothes," replied the little girl. "If I couldn't make them fast enough I could buy some with my own money."

Dr. Stevens arrived during the interview and seemed much embarrassed over the incident.

"Please don't put my name in the paper," he said. "I am afraid that my friends will give me the laugh."

SAYS HER FATHER TORE UP HER WEDDING FINERY

Irate Parent Shows His Disapproval

TRENTON, March 25.—Mrs. Helen Kish, of 20 Woolvorton avenue, asked Judge Rees for a warrant for her father, Lewis Sabor, for tearing up her wedding finery and destroying her wedding presents when she removed from the parental roof to live with her husband.

She says her father refused to allow her wedding dresses and presents to go out of the house. She got a constable and he ordered the father to give up the things. The father promised and the constable went away. Then the father tore the clothing into ribbons and broke the wedding presents.

Mrs. Kish says this was his way of showing disapproval of her marriage.

CALLED LOVE LETTERS "SLUSH;" SPOUSE WEEPS

Says His Wife First Proposed to Him

NEW HAVEN, March 25.—Edwin Kenneth Norton, the former Yale freshman, told on the witness stand today the story of his marriage to Josephine Birney, from whom he is trying to get a divorce. He had first met the cloak model while a student nineteen years of age at a drug store near the Yale campus in August, 1905. He had been out to supper with her frequently, he said, and they drank intoxicating drinks together. The first mention of marriage between them was five days before they were wedded in Bridgeport by a Justice of the peace.

HER PROPOSAL.

"I never asked that woman to marry me in my life," declared Norton, "it was she first intimated the thing. She told me how to get married and that it would be as easy for him to get a divorce as to get a marriage certificate. We went to Bridgeport and were married by a Justice of the Peace."

Norton declared that he left his wife Feb. 11, 1908, after the announcement of the wedding had been made in the newspapers. He denied he had been kidnapped by his family, and taken away from his bride, as alleged.

"You believe what you wrote in your letters 'o be true?"

"Yes, I was infatuated with her; but it ceased before I left New Haven."

The lawyer produced a letter of Feb. 8, 1906, the day before Norton was away.

"Yes, I suppose I did write that slush," he said, as he scanned it scornfully.

At this juncture Mrs. Norton broke into tears. Norton said the very next day when the publication of the marriage brought him to his senses, the situation dawned on him.

HIS WAY OUT.

"I saw what a scrape I was in," he said, "and I wanted to get out of it." Several love letters were read by Mrs. Norton's counsel. In them Norton spoke of her as the "hope of his life," of himself as "a foolish youngster with only one girl to live for." Norton said he had no doubt he wrote them, but he "couldn't remember whether he meant that slush or not."

Norton's testimony ended the taking of evidence in the case, and tomorrow it will be taken under advisement by Judge Shumway.

REDDING, Cal., March 25.—Young Ketchell, of Butte, knocked out Mike McClure, of San Francisco, in the seventh round before the Mount Shasta Athletic Club, in the fiercest contest ever witnessed in Redding. PLIGHT OF SHERIFF

On Wednesday Judge Weller is to decide a criminal trial case involving Sheriff W. J. Taylor of Marin county. Taylor, it is alleged, told a San Francisco reporter that $1800 was passed to M. P. Cochran of San Rafael to be used to bribe a jury trying a Mrs. Kneff. On Saturday Judge Cabanis is to decide regarding Taylor's responsibility for the charge. In a letter, M. P. Cochran, a brother to the afore-said, was recipient of $5000 from Mrs. Kneff, which sum was for jury-bribing purposes at San Rafael.

Trace of him was revealed to the police by inquiry at pawnbrokers. Saturday he was arrested and stolen jewelry was found in his possession. He has made a confession. March 9 he began his deceptions by entering the residence of Mrs. T. McDonald, at 132 Shrader street, and obtaining jewelry and cash valued at $110.

Saturday he became frantic, while in the dock before Judge Weller, and created a wild scene by his cries and behavior. He scattered his fellow prisoners, and benches and chairs were upset. It required the united efforts of the bailiff and several policemen to manacle him.

The projected government improvements at Fort Mason will include six big storerooms and miles of ample room to accommodate four army transports at a time. Quarters for twelve officers are to be provided, and railroad tracks are to be built to allow cars to discharge or receive loads right by shipside.

DORIS

By DOROTHY BAIRD

A COMPLETE ENGLISH LOVE STORY

THE fresh bracing wind swept over the Downs in great, overwhelming gusts, laying the short grass flat on the chalky ground, and awakening strange squeaks and groans in the scattered bushes. All around the bleak Downs stretched out and away in grand curves till their outlines became dim and faint in the blue distance. Far below, the wooded valley smiled in the light of the fitful sunshine, and now and again the song of the lark, hovering over a field of newly-sprouting wheat, would come up faintly on the wind to the silent solitudes above.

It was a glorious wind, that rollicking, roving, rollickous Down-wind, keen and soft all in one breath, fresh and invigorating down to the last degree. It brought a bright, healthy glow to Doris Mayston's cheeks as she stood breathing her horse after his long climb up the steep road, and it played in and out among her hair till it reduced her curls to a most bewitching state of disorder.

VERY BEAUTIFUL. She was very beautiful, with a calm steadfastness of expression not often seen on the face of one so young. But Doris Mayston's life had not been full of sunshine so far, and her trials had left their impress on her broad brow and in her patient eyes. She looked very well in her neat riding habit, which set off the exquisite curves of her trim figure, and she held up her head to the breeze as if she loved it, and let it play around her temples and clinging golden curls which nestled there.

She looked all round, with a quick, eager glance, as if she expected to see some one else on the lonely Downs. But there was not a creature in view, so she whipped up her horse and sped away for a long gallop over the hills. She had not gone far when she became aware of the tread of another horse's hoofs on the soft springy turf behind her, and in a few minutes a young man overtook her, and they galloped on side by side through the fresh morning air. They could not greet each other, the wind was whistling too loud in their ears for that. But she turned and her eyes brightened into one of their sweet sunny smiles. He was an old friend and neighbor—Basil Locke; a mere lad still, but well grown, fair and handsome.

And so they galloped on in silence, lost in the excitement of the motion and the joy of life on a fresh spring morning. At last they came to a little dip in the hillside, where a fir plantation had crept up lovingly over the side of the Downs, and formed a slight protection from the rollicking wind. Here they drew rein, but slowly and reluctantly. Doris drew a long sigh. "Ah," she said, "that was good!"

There were primroses peeping out of the moss within the wood, and Doris' eyes lingered on them lovingly. Perhaps the young man noticed this, for he dismounted quickly, and coming to her side, held out his arms to help her down. The wind moaned a dirge through the fir-trees, and whistled in the grass at their feet. A robin in a neighboring bush sang one or two tentative little notes, and the primroses quivered and nodded in the chequered sunlight. It was spring-time, and the message of spring shone in his eyes as he looked up at her. And she, well, she was intoxicated with the glorious hillside air and the beauty of it all, and almost unconsciously she allowed herself to be lifted down. Then he kissed her on the lips.

"Ah," he said, "that was good." For a moment she rested there in his arms, lost in the dreamy consciousness that he loved her, and the remembrance of the burning kiss he had given her. Then slowly before her mind's eye there rose the vision of a sweet, fair face, the face of her sister, Doris remembered with a pang how the enstative cheer would blush at the bare mention of Basil's name, and how she would tremble with joy when he approached. Queenie loved him, dear beautiful Queenie, across whose path in life not even a crumpled rose leaf had fallen to mar its happiness. Doris could not bring sorrow to her. She drew quickly back.

"What have I done?" she cried, in horror. "What have you done?" he answered, laughing. "You have made me very happy—that is what you have done." She laughed uneasily. The look in his eyes was very sweet and tender. Still, he was young—there was yet hope for her sister.

"Do not talk nonsense!" she said, hastily. "You should not have done it—you knew you should not; and I—well, perhaps I was to blame, too; but I trusted you!" "What do you mean?" he asked, a shade of doubt passing over his face. "I mean that I do not like such jokes as these. You should have known me better than to have tried it," said the girl, steadying herself against a lichen-grown tree trunk.

NOT A JOKE. "Jokes, Doris? It is no joke. God knows it is not a joke. I love you, Doris. It is the truth and you know it."

A bitter smile crept over her features.

"Basil, how can you talk like that? Why, we are much too young to know what love is yet."

"Be that as it may, dear, I love you, and you know it. And you love me, I saw it in your eyes just now when I kissed you. And you know that you love me, too."

"No, no. You go too fast," she returned, quickly. "I was excited—in-toxicated with the gallop. My eyes were bright with the air, and so, perhaps, you imagined."

"I know what I have seen, and you know, too. Your eyes at least speak truth," he answered, doggedly.

The call of the wood-pigeon came softly through the trees, and the air was laden with the fragrance of the pines. He looked very handsome and pleading as he stood there in the sunlight, and she loved him. For one moment she was tempted; then she thought of Queenie once more.

She turned and laid a hand on each arm and looked up at his face searchingly.

"Look here!" she said, simply and gravely. "You and I are very good friends. Our friendship has been one of the few pleasures of my life. Do not turn that friendship into one of its many sorrows with your boyish sentiment."

"DO YOU LOVE ME?" A scornful light flashed across his eyes, but it passed quickly, and a soft look shone in them once more as he repeated gently—

"But you love me, Doris?" "That is all nonsense."

"But you have not denied it." "It is not worth while. We are both so young that it is ridiculous for us to speak of such things."

He made a gesture of impatience. "You are laughing at me," he began. But she silenced him with an imperious motion, and commenced retracing her steps down the mossy path to the tree where they had tethered their horses.

He placed her on her horse, and then stood holding her rein and looking up steadfastly into her face.

"Your friendship has been the guiding influence of my life," he said. "And I thank you, and thank God for it. But I shall never cease to love you, and some day you will acknowledge the love which I saw just now in your eyes."

He loosed the rein, and she sped away again over the Downs, while this hot tears gathered in her eyes and coursed down her cheeks. She had betrayed herself, and for Queenie's sake had perjured herself and bereft her life of all that made it joyful to her.

Five years rolled by, and once more Basil Locke rode over the hills in the spring sunlight. He had traveled far and seen many lands since he had ridden there with Doris, and he had grown broad and stalwart, and his skin was tanned a deep brown with tropic suns. But his blue eyes were as frank and his smile as sunny as ever, though time had added determination to his square jaw and strength to his firm lips.

His heart was full of joy as he rode over the Downs, revelling in the life giving air, for he was going to Doris to claim for his own the love which she had denied him five years ago. No shadow of doubt or her constancy crossed his mind, no foreboding of evil marred his gladness. He had read her eyes aright that far-away morning, and he knew that she was as good as she was beautiful, and as faithful as she was good.

He came to the copse, where they had kissed five years ago. The primroses were blooming among the moss just as they had done then. He dismounted and gathered a few of the delicate blossoms, smiling to himself at the thought of the expression that would creep over her face when he should give them to her.

The house was strangely still and quiet as he drew up to the door. He had hoped to hear her singing in one of the dim passages as she used to do in the dear bygone days. But all was silent as the grave, and when he asked for Doris they looked at him agnost.

"Do you not know; can it be you have not heard?" they asked. "Doris is dying."

AMONG THE FLOWERS. Yes, in the low celled room above, Doris lay among the flowers in her oriel window, with her pale face turned towards the west, knowing full well that when the sun should set tomorrow over her beloved hills her eyes would be closed for ever and her spirit gone to its long rest. She had been thinking of Basil, and she wished that she could see him once more before she went. He must have deemed her very heartless, she thought, on that far-away morning when he kissed her beneath the pines. But now, if he would only come, she could tell him that she loved him. There would be no barrier now save her own short span of life. For Queenie's love had been but

A QUESTION

When Eating an Orange Why Do You Throw the Skin Away?

You immediately answer, because the skin is indigestible, unpalatable, useless.

This delicious and nutritious fruit has a parallel in cod liver oil. Over fifty medicinal alkaloids or curative elements are to be found in the cod's liver, and for centuries people have been swallowing the greasy, indigestible, nauseating oil, either in its raw form or in an emulsion, to get the benefit of these medicinal elements.

Now it has been proven by two celebrated French chemists that the oil which envelops the curative properties found in the cod's liver is just as useless as the skin of an orange, and have discovered a way to separate all of these medicinal elements from the oil, retaining all that is good and eliminating the bad, and thus make Vinol.

This will explain what a valuable medicine Vinol is, and why it is superseding old-fashioned cod liver oil and emulsions, and why it has been so successful in curing stomach troubles, giving strength and renewed vitality to the weak, run-down and aged.

Building up the convalescent, and it is because we know so well of what Vinol is made that we unhesitatingly offer to return money in every case where it fails. The Owl Drug Co.

Note: While we are agents for Vinol in Oakland, it is now for sale at the leading drug store in nearly every town and city in the country. Look for the Vinol agency in your town.

a passing fancy, and had faded after the first year of Basil's absence. Her butterfly heart had at last found its chosen abiding place. Queenie was married—but Doris lay dying.

It was no use wishing, she thought. She would never hear his voice again. Tomorrow she would be dead, and he would never know.

Then the door opened gently, and Basil himself stood before her, pale beneath his tan, his eyes full of regret. He could not speak, but he laid the primroses in the thin hands she stretched out towards him.

BREATH OF SPRING. Their faint smell filled the room, and brought the very breath of the spring to her. It seemed almost as if she stood once more on the moss beneath the pines and heard the dirge of the wind in the branches, the coo of the pigeon through the glades. The glad sweet look for which he longed spread over her wan face.

"You have been there?" she asked. "I have brought you these to tell you I love you still," he said, finding a in her hand.

voice at last. "Will you laugh at me now?"

"I must laugh, dear, for very joy that you have come," she answered. "And the laughter will be in my heart as well. Years ago I laughed with my lips, but tears were in my heart."

"Why?" he asked very low. But she understood.

"Someone else loved you, too, dear. But it is all over now."

The sun had sunk very low, and its last rays cast a fleeting glow over her face as he bent toward her.

"And now it is 'good-bye,' he said, brokenly.

"For a little while," she replied, her brave eyes smiling into his.

"For a little while," he repeated, dreamily.

And when they carried her to the grave the primroses were tight clasped, I love you still," he said, finding a in her hand.
